MISS DOUGLASS GUEST AT PRE-NUPPTIAL SHOWER

Mrs Ann Douglass, daughter of Mr and Mrs Howard Douglass of Upton, was guest of honor at a pre-nuptial shower given by the senior girls of Gould Academy at the home of Miss Catherine Carter Wednesday evening. Those attending besides the senior girls were: Mrs Ruth Conner, Mrs Alice Brown, Mrs Barbara Greenleaf, Mrs S S Greenleaf, Miss Eugenia Hoselton, Mrs Mary Wolfe, and Mrs Eddie York.

Members of the graduating class of Crescent Park School will go to West Bath Friday for a shore dinner at Lee Launher's Rock Hill Inn. In the afternoon they will enjoy a guided tour of the Brunswick Naval Air Base. Chaperones will be Mrs Mary Rice, Mrs Louise Linn, Mrs Gertrude Hutchins, and the leaders, Mrs Olive Larrey, and Charles Helme.

The Week in Oxford County

Mrs Hugh Tracy and Mrs Irving Raymond escaped serious injury Thursday when brakes on the car driven by Mrs Tracy failed on the Streaked Mountain road. The car left the road and overturned in a field. Mrs Tracy and Mrs Raymond were taken to the Stephens Memorial Hospital for treatment. A unique message and directional sign at Lynchville in Albion, bearing the names of Maine places like those in foreign countries has been stolen. The sheriff's department is investigating.

Berry Jones, 18, of Harlow Hill Road, Madison, was instantly killed in an auto accident Saturday. There

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

During Wednesday and Thursday of this week I will be attending the meeting of the Maine Municipal Association at Rockland. This is an association of cities and towns of which this town is a member. Numerous services are provided, as follows: a monthly magazine, information service on municipal problems, legal consultant service consisting of written advisory legal opinions on general municipal problems, weekly Legislative Bulletins while the legislature is in session, several manuals pertaining to municipal subjects. Recently a new member has been added to the staff to fill the position of field representative. He will travel throughout the state making contacts with various municipal officials. A great deal is offered by the association for the small amount of dues required to be a member.

Tarring will start next week. A tank car has been ordered for delivery on Monday. Current plans call for about 30,000 gallons, part of which will be for new work and the remainder for seal and mulch on existing tar roads and streets.

On Monday of this week several gravel roads were treated with about 19 tons of calcium chloride. This material stabilizes the surface preventing dust and keeps the traveled surface in a much smoother condition.

Sincerely yours,

Harold L. Bean

Letters from other editors

From the Page News and Courier, Luray, Virginia: We Americans have an amazing amount of mechanical power at our command, to use at work and at play. To take one obvious example, today's automobiles pack huge amounts of horsepower under their hoods—more, indeed, than many truck drivers.

But there is one area—and a highly important area—in which tons of millions of people just don't have enough power for today's requirements. It is called "horsepower." That word covers the adequacy or inadequacy of your electrical wiring, outlets and switches.

The "horsepower" problem is a big one. It is estimated that more than 30,000,000 homes need modernization of wiring. And that figure is not just made up of older ones. A great many homes of recent construction are seriously short of electrical capacity.

There are certain definite signs to tell you if you are one of the millions who need more "horsepower." If fuses frequently blow, or your electrical appliances are slow to heat, or lights flicker, or the picture on the TV screen shrinks, you're putting more load on your home's electrical system than is safe and proper.

Economic Highlights . . .

Occurrences That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The lives and fortunes of many millions Americans are directly or indirectly influenced by foreign trade.

A booklet produced by the United States Council of the International Chamber of Commerce tells the story in brief form. Today, believe it or not, foreign trade provides more direct employment than the textile, auto, chemical and steel industries combined. In 1956, exports of American goods and services, excluding grants of military goods, reached a value of $23.4 billion, and imports totaled $12.7 billion. Putting it another way, our exports amount to just over 4 per cent of all the movable goods produced in this country, and our imports of commodities used in value about 4 per cent of our domestic production of movable goods. We are the world's greatest trading nation, and no other power has so great a dollar-a-decade's stake in foreign trade. On top of that, as the booklet puts it, "The economic health and military strength of other friendly nations are ultimately affected by our foreign trade."

This trade, moreover, is not limited to a comparatively small number of enterprises. Nearly every branch of American industry producing movable goods exports some of its products. Since World War II, agricultural exports have produced roughly one-eighth of total farm cash income. In non-agricultural fields, the principal exporters run a varied gamut—coal and oil, chemicals, iron and steel, farm machinery, automobiles and trucks, mining and construction equipment, electrical machinery and aircraft products. That group of industries, incidentally, accounts for roughly one-third of all business activity in the United States. It employs over 12 million workers, and plays a major role in setting the pace for all domestic business activity.

We are also a great importing nation. In 1956, for instance, we have changed from a net exporter of raw materials to a net importer, for the reason that we are no longer self-sufficient in this field. We import 100 per cent of our coffee, tea and industrial diamonds, along with 85 per cent of our asbestos, and nearly as much of our nickel and chrome. Other raw materials, including those of a strategic nature, which we buy abroad include varying percentages of our tin, manganese, tungsten, cobalt, lead, zinc, copper and so on down a long list. The booklet points out that our commodity imports may double in the next 20 years. We also import quantities of various manufactured goods—photographic equipment, optical instruments, watches, etc. Here the booklet says that there are many specific cases in which foreign competition has made a direct contribution to the welfare of this country by forcing improved domestic production.

The booklet goes into such related questions as tariffs and the government aid to foreign nations programs. It emphasizes the growing importance of foreign trade to our national security as well as to the size and flexibility of the American economy. And it assumes the significance of foreign trade as a constitutive world economic force in these words: "In the future we must trade considerably to the best use of our available resources by permitting its students to concentrate on those types of production for which they are especially fitted, while purchasing from other countries those goods which others are better fitted to produce."

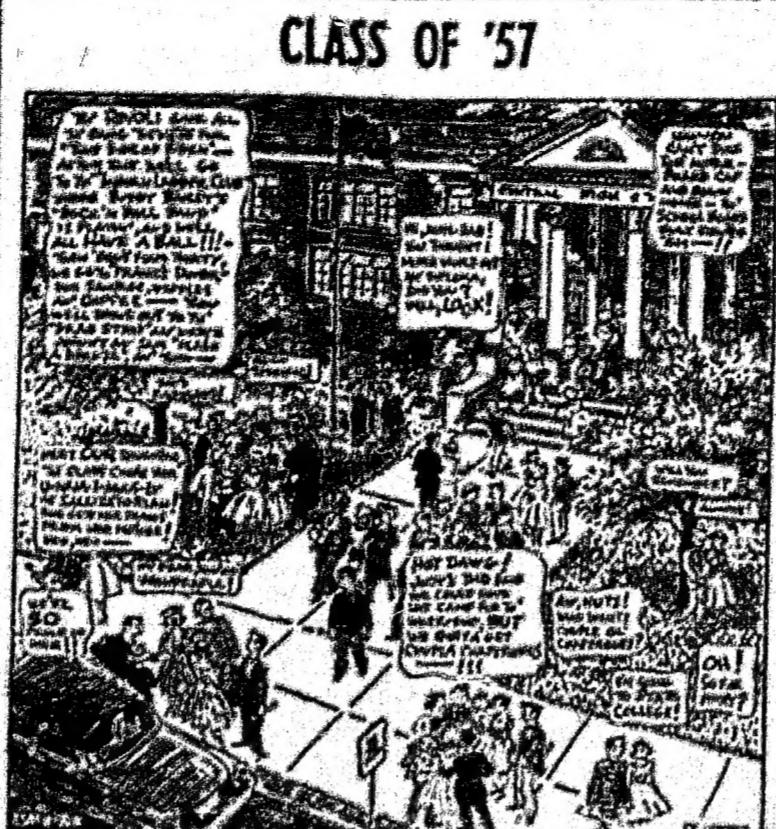

It would still be able to over ride any such.

Budget Director Forrest F. Newitt contrasted that $10 million could have been saved on public works projects this year for 1956 and 1957 if the President had been able to use the line veto. He said this would have meant eliminating or postponing projects not included in the President's budget, which will cost more than $10 million.

AN but eight states authorize their Governors to use the line veto and I am so substantially reason why the President should not be vested with the same power.

I strongly oppose of giving the President such power to use the line veto. As it is now, members of Congress and senators who are often headed down with everything from the public works to grants-in-aid, are not authorized to do this. For example, a bill authorizing $100 million dollar grants whose purpose was to help those who are eligible receive money for a higher educational program like Head Start can be stopped up in a bill otherwise good to everyone. It cannot make sense to say the President must veto those without using the line veto.

Some members of Congress feel that this veto would give the President too much power and on this basis to avoid Congressional policy. They forget that Congress

MILITARY TEAMWORK BEST

Our first Secretary of Defense, James Forrestal, said: "Whether it be in business, government, or military operations, I mistrust the principle of relying on a single genius to make all basic decisions."

The assertion that a single chief of staff system is efficient, economical and desirable from a national standpoint is not supported by history, fact, or experience. The concept has fatal defects from military, political and economic standpoints.

Our Joint Chiefs of Staff organization has in practice demonstrated the genius of the American people for democracy. This system has solved the problem which has long plagued democratic republics, the difficulty of being militarily strong without becoming militaristic. Other advantages of this system are many and certain.

It has demonstrated that where speed of decision is required, it can meet the test.

It assures our nation that vital decisions are arrived at after a sound deliberative process. Our national survival is based not upon the whim of an individual, but upon the decisions of the best military minds our nation has available.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff organization assures the proper development and employment of our

PUBLIC DEBT IS NOT LIKE PRIVATE DEBT

Most of us know that the federal debt is about $75 billion. But few have any concept of what that means. It's just a figure, almost beyond human comprehension.

Senator Byrd, writing in National Review, gives a vivid picture of the debt. That $75 billion he says is the equivalent of the assessed value of all the land, buildings, mines, machinery, factories, livestock, everything of tangible value, in the United States.

Then he goes on to say something that must be far better understood than it is now in this country, as we know it, is to give “Public debt is not like private. If private debt is not paid off, it can be ended by bankruptcy proceedings, and may be not many people are hurt. If public debt is not paid off, paid off with taxes, the result is disastrous inflation or hyperinflation. Either would destroy our stock of government.”

The proposed new budget is the largest in our peacetime history.

According to the estimate, there will be a small surplus if the bill is approved. But it is evident that even a very modest deficit in the balanced budget will be the effect that would have on tax rates.

Miss Beverly Ondra graduated from the School of Applied Arts Boston, May 24. After spending a week here with her parents, she returned to Boston, where she has found employment for the summer.

Mrs. Alice McAllister was in Bethel.

BIG BUDGET QUIZ

The quiz show has become one of the phenomena of the times.

Television is now crowded with programs in which contestants can win all manner of prizes if they are able to answer enough questions correctly.

The Citizens Committee for The

Hoover Report also has produced a quiz. It involves billions of dollars some of which comes out of your own pocket. It is called the "Big Budget" and here are the questions and answers.

1. How much is the government's proposed budget for fiscal

1958? The answer: $11,600,000,000.

2. How long would it take you,

an individual citizen, to spend this sum at the rate of $100,000 a day?

The answer: Nearly 400 years.

3. Has the government ever spent more in a single year? The answer: Only in wartime.

4. How does the 1958 budget

compare with federal spending 20 years ago? The answer: 1,000 per cent increase.

5. What will 1958 budget costs

to families and individuals?

The answer: $1,600 per average American family, or 20% per capita.

6. How high is the national debt?

The answer: $274,000,000,000.

7. What is the average family's share of this debt? The answer:

$100 a year.

8. Who spent more for science

on the Hoover Report? The answer:

Science, the Administration, and you.
